Safety and Technology Spotlight: TBFM

During the first quarter of 2022, NATCA members were involved with several positive steps for Time-Based Flow Management (TBFM). TBFM is a system of tools used to manage traffic flows based on time to maximize efficiency. Article 114 Rep Matt Gammon (Indianapolis Center, ZID) reports that in February, the TBFM Ops Team participated in Integrated Departure Arrival Capability (IDAC) installations at Islip (ISP) and Harrisburg (MDT), then returned to Harrisburg a couple of weeks later to conduct IDAC training at the facility. Ops Team members also worked together with MDT and New York Center (ZNY) to discuss operational use of the system, Gammon said. In other program news, the new TBFM 4.10.2 system was released to the field. "The previous system has been in the field for an extended period, and an update was essential," Gammon said. "Additionally, the new 4.10.2 systems added functionality that was requested by the field." Read more.

Are your parents or other loved ones aging and you are concerned about their wellness? Did you know that WorkLife Solutions also offers free senior care management? You can get a free in-home assessment to determine if their living arrangements are safe. Adult care specialists will create a personalized care plan, review the plan with you, and introduce you to resources available to implement it.

The greatest benefit of the WorkLife Solutions Program is eight confidential counseling sessions with a licensed clinician that DO NOT have to be reported on your ATC medical exam. You get eight sessions, per issue, every 12 months. These sessions are available to you, your spouse, children, and anyone living under your roof, even if they are not your dependent. The sessions are completely free and your medical insurance will not be used.

To learn more about the senior care management, counseling sessions, or any other WorkLife Solutions benefits, please contact the NATCA EAP Committee at worklife@natca.net.
