Meet NATCA's National Terminal Automation Rep: Allen Casey

Elected by acclamation in May, NATCA's National Terminal Automation

Representative Allen Casey represents the 40 NATCA members working as Automation Support Specialists, covered by the Light Blue Book. Automation Support Specialists have skill sets including air traffic control, technician, computer science, and engineering.

“Every day a terminal or tower controller uses the Terminal Automation System, and behind the scenes an operational support specialist has worked hours with their facility to make sure the system is configured optimally for safety and ease of use,” Casey said. “NATCA offers sisterhood and brotherhood that is designed to give its members the best working environment possible. Educating my members on their rights per the contract and the other support items their labor union offers is very exciting to me.”

NATCA is pleased to spotlight Casey and the members he represents in their vital part of maintaining safe and efficient operations for the world's largest air traffic control and navigation system.
