

Thank You for a Successful First-Ever Activism and Training Expo!

Last week, NATCA held its first-ever Activism and Training Expo (ATX) at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. It was a great opportunity for NATCA members to increase their knowledge about a variety of work- and safety-related topics and learn more about our Union and union activism in general.

We extend our heartfelt thanks to the NATCA members and staff who spent months planning for this week, preparing to teach courses, and readying booths. Our Union succeeds because of the commitment and service of people like you. We can accomplish anything when we join in solidarity and commit to a common goal. Read more about ATX here.

Meet and Greet with President Santa and Executive Vice President LeBovidge During ATX

After each day of classes concluded, President Santa and Executive Vice President LeBovidge provided the opportunity for ATX attendees to meet with them in person to ask questions and discuss issues pertaining to our Union.

NATCA ATX Exhibit Hall Offers Connection & Opportunity to Members

All of NATCA's classes and committees are represented at ATX, with many of our Article 114 Representatives also in attendance. These instructors, committee members, and representatives are providing briefings, information, and training on all aspects of our Union and the National Airspace System.

The ATX exhibit hall offers attendees an opportunity to interact with members of NATCA's committees and professional staff outside of the classroom, allowing them to sharpen their skills as activists, professionals, and leaders.

ATX Class Highlights

ATX showcased NATCA's training courses along with briefings and education from many of our committees and Article 114 reps. The classes covered themes including legislative, safety, technology and infrastructure, local business, collaboration, labor relations, and committees.
