

Introducing “Guardians of the Sky,” A New Video Series Highlighting America’s Extraordinary Air Traffic Controllers

NATCA is now on TikTok! Our Union is launching its TikTok with videos that highlight the incredible work of air traffic controllers; discuss advocacy issues important to air traffic controllers, other aviation safety professionals, and the aviation community; messages from NATCA leaders; and highlights from NATCA events.

If you are on TikTok, please follow us @natcanational today!

We're starting by launching a new video series called “Guardians of the Sky.” Each video will highlight a real-life incident where America’s air traffic controllers exemplified their skill, training, and professionalism in a moment of crisis.

Controllers do amazing work every day to ensure flying remains one of the safest and most efficient modes of transportation in the world. These Guardians of the Sky videos emphasize the dedication of these incredibly well-trained, hard-working men and women and the responsibility they demonstrate every day to the safety of the American flying public.

Our first video spotlights the incredible work of several air traffic controllers at Boston Center (ZBW) who stepped up to assist a military pilot of a F-16 trying to find a safe place to land in blizzard weather conditions while running low on fuel.

Georgia Congressional Delegation Expressed Support for NATCA

U.S. Representatives Brian Jack (Ga.-03), Rick Allen (Ga.-12), Mike Collins (Ga.-10) and Earl Carter (Ga.-01) expressed their continued support to NATCA and its membership during a recent event in Georgia. Also in attendance was Governor Brian Kemp who acknowledged the importance of the aviation industry in Georgia's economy while speaking with NATCA member and Georgia State Coordinator Jefferson Bishop (Atlanta TRACON, A80).

The conversations between Bishop and the Georgia delegation focused on ATC staffing, protecting the Federal Employee Retirement System (FERS), and modernizing the National Airspace System (NAS).

CFS: Plan Ahead and Save Before Aug. 16

CFS 2025 is the only conference dedicated entirely to aviation safety, operations, and collaboration. This three-day event in Las Vegas brings together the people who guide and protect the flying public every day.

General registration and Archie League Awards Banquet ticket prices go up after Aug. 15. Refunds will no longer be available, and NATCA's discounted hotel block will be subject to availability.
